MOVED TO NEW HILO JAIL.
HILO, September 13.—The removal of the quarters of the Territorial jail from down in town up to the new building took place Saturday. The structure containing the kitchen and dining room is being torn down and removed to the new building for reconstruction there. This is made necessary by the fact that the plans of the new jail made no provision for eating and cooking quarters. The high wooden wall surrounding the old jail will also be torn down and removed. The new quarters are more satisfactory to the prisoners. It is cooler and breezier up there and a good view over town and harbor is obtained. The new jail contains some 16 cells, and completed will contain from 40 to 50.

Leave Fight To Claimants

ATTORNEY GENERAL PETERS WILL NOT BUTT IN TO THE KUNIAKEA CONTEST.

The Attorney General's Department has decided not to butt in to the Kuniakea estate case for the purpose of having the estate escheat to the Territory, as a matter of policy. The contest over the $3,000 worth of property will be left to the various claimants and when they have all done, if none of them is able to establish a claim, the Territory will step in and take the property.

At the start of the case the department took an interest and watched it with a view to intervening and claiming the estate, there being said to be no legal heir. Attorney General Peters said this morning, however, that he would not make any attempt to get the property. "As a matter of policy I think we should rather hope that some legitimate heir or heiress exists and will prove title," said Peters. "It would therefore be more our duty to assist claimants in establishing title, than to attempt to prove that there is no legitimate heir and that the property should revert to the Territory."

"Acting under this view this department will keep its hands off the case until it is finally determined. The various claimants will be left free to fight their battle until it is settled by the Supreme Court. Then, if it appears that no one of them has a title, it will of course be our duty to claim the property for the Territory."

The hearing of the case was continued all yesterday before Judge Robinson, and was adjourned at the close of the day until tomorrow. The case is marked by remarkable contradictions of witnesses regarding the relations existing between deceased parties whose relationship is the main matter at issue.

guards at the Peterhof Palace. Simultaneous with the blowing up of Premier Stolypin's palace two men succeeded in forcing an entrance into the courtyard of the Imperial residence at Peterhof. One of the men carried a huge bomb concealed in a basket of fruit and both were armed. Their actions aroused the suspicions of several of the loyal palace guards who placed the two men under arrest. When they were searched the instrument of death was discovered and they were immediately placed in solitary confinement. One of the men was first seen inside the palace grounds by a sentry who halted him and questioned him closely. The man gave a satisfactory explanation of his presence here, but shortly after he acted so suspiciously that the sentry placed him under arrest. The prisoner then attempted to signal to his accomplice, who was found behind a tree, carefully hiding the deadly basket of fruit. An examination of the two men at the offices of the secret police disclosed the fact that they were from Moscow and were supposed to be in sympathy with the terrorist movement.

Everyone Makes His Own Path

KEEP OFF THE PATHWAY IS THE RULE OF MANY ON CAPITOL GROUNDS.

"KEEP OFF THE WALKS."
"WALKING ALLOWED ONLY
ON THE GRASS."

Instead of a broad lawn crossed by pathways, the Honolulu public appears to have decided that the Capitol grounds shall be a complicated maze of pathways streaked by grass.

For some months past the short-cut fraternity has been the bane of existence to those in charge of the Capitol grounds, from Governor Carter down. Paths were made to allow the short-cut men to cross the lawn diagonally, and Caretaker Greene thought he saw chances of keeping the grass the color of his name. But the first morning after the paths were opened he beheld gangs of laborers cutting small triangles here and there. He consulted Holloway. The result was a very crafty scheme. It was decided to put sprinklers in the midst of the favorite routes of the short cutters, so that they couldn't make their cut without getting wet. Greene began to get blue as he watched the short cutters follow the old routes, except that they cheerfully made little detours round the sprinklers' spheres of influence.

Greene had some nice signs painted. They were planted right in the middle of the unauthorized paths and they told people to stick to the cemented walks. The short cut men simply sidestepped the signs and continued on the even leeward of the grassy way.

As the Capitol is one of Honolulu's objects of beauty and the Territory is responsible for its care, the matter reached the dignity of an affair of state, and the Governor discussed it in the robin's egg blue chamber, with Holloway, while Greene cavorted below and said things to short cutters. From above the governor looked down and saw the people making cross sections all over the lawn, till it began to look like a picture of the canals on Mars. Greene put a man on watch to keep people on the sidewalks, but after a short experience it was found that his language was burning the grass and doing more damage than the trespassing.

As a last resort barbed wire was decided upon, and now there is a line of it barring people from their favorite walks. This morning a healthy Portuguese was observed approaching from the Hotel street side. The short cut walk was well guarded. There was barbed wire, a sign and a sprinkler. The pedestrian quietly stepped over the wire, past the sign and around the sprinkler, and sauntered leisurely across the grass towards King street. Caretaker Greene is said to have done everything but weep.

There is a good deal of a howl about the barbed wire, as likely to hurt children and possibly men with packages, but the governor is inclined to approve the wire. "We must do something," he said, "to prevent that portion of the public who will not stop to think from destroying the beauty of the grounds. Everything has been tried. We might shut the gates and order people off the grounds altogether, but we don't want to do that. The grounds are for the public, and it is desired that all possible use shall be made of them. People are at liberty to go on the grass, to lie down there and slumber, and children playing on the grass are gladly welcomed. But we cannot have footpaths worn in all sorts of directions by people who are merely crossing to cut off a few hundred feet of a corner. In some way we must teach the people who are merely crossing that they should keep to the walks."

The governor was on the upper banal of the Capitol as he spoke, looking at the troublesome green lawn. Two laborers were walking from King street mauka-Waikiki towards the Capitol. One was on the cemented pathway, and the other strolled blissfully along on the grass, walking all the way just parallel to the path and about one foot from it.

DRUNKENNESS IS THE DEFENSE

TAKAMOTO, CHARGED WITH MURDER, SAYS HE WAS FULL OF SAKA AND WHISKY.

Takamoto, who is on trial for murder, took the stand in Judge De Blit's court this morning, and swore that on the day of the killing he had participated in a gag involving the consumption of a gallon of sake and two bottles of whisky, and that he didn't remember anything at all about the alleged murder, having been hopelessly drunk. This was the case for the defense.

Takamoto is now under cross-examination by Deputy Attorney General Prosser. The defense will probably close this afternoon.

There will be considerable rebuttal testimony, it is stated. Experts will be called on the subject of sake drinking to combat the proposition that a gallon could be imbibed. Noar and Long are conducting the defense.

HAWAII AND THE BILL BOARDS

WHAT THE POST-INTELLIGENCER
HAS TO SAY ABOUT OUR METH-ODS—IT GIVES APPROVAL.

The Seattle Post-Intelligencer has the following to say regarding Honolulu and the bill boards.

The movement for the abolition of bill-boards has reached the Hawaiian Islands and the Hawaiian Promotion Committee is waging a vigorous campaign against them. It is realized fully how much the unsightly and offensive billboards detract from the appearance of the city, and the appearance of Honolulu is one of its great assets. In the endeavor to improve the city and make it more attractive to tourists, the billboard offense naturally presented itself as one of the obstacles in the way of civic improvement.

After the discussion of various methods of getting rid of the nuisance, ranging from the most stringent legislation possible against them to a general boycott upon goods advertised in this offensive manner, it was finally determined that the evil could not be abated in full by any methods of legislation. A general boycott was unlawful and individual boycotts would hardly prove efficacious. A statute could but minimize the evil, not do away with it entirely.

Finally, the promotion committee decided to seek the co-operation of the merchants. The Merchants' Association and the Chamber of Commerce have each been communicated with and the committee is now using all of its energies to induce the merchants of Honolulu to enter into an agreement to refuse further to patronize the billboards or to engage in its offensive form of advertising, which detracts from the beauty of the city and thus becomes a direct injury to the public.

The manner adopted in Hawaii of dealing with the situation seems a practical one. It is educational in its methods. It may take time to convince the merchants who now use billboards that the advertising benefit which they receive from their use is of less real value than a beautiful city which would attract visitors and increase the number of their customers in that manner. By united action among the merchants, the bill board nuisance can readily be abated. The billboards are put up because space on them is purchased for advertising purposes by the merchants. If they cease to purchase the space, billboards will no longer be erected and those which are up will come down.

TO BRING WATER TO NEW YORK

ONE HUNDRED AND SIXTY-ONE
MILLION DOLLARS WILL BE EX-PENDED FOR BIG SUPPLY.

NEW YORK, September 13.—That the commissioners of the new board of water supply already have 547 engineers at work doing preliminary work for carrying out the $161,000,000 enterprise for increasing the water supply of this city was revealed today at a meeting of the commission. It was asserted that the work when completed would be more gigantic than even the building of the Panama Canal. No time will be lost in pushing the work, and it is predicted that within three years 60,000,000 gallons of water daily will be added to the city supply.

This 60,000,000 gallons of additional water supply will be acquired by building part of the aqueduct around Hunter's brook and Shoop river and a tunnel beneath the Hudson river which, with its approaches, will be six miles long. It probably will extend from Old Cro' Nest to Bull mountain, passing beneath Little Stony Point, a short distance north of Cold Springs. Within six years fifty-eight miles of aqueduct from Kensico reservoir to Ashokan dam, will be completed, thus adding 50,000,000 gallons of water daily to the city's supply. This Ashokan dam will be 260 feet high.

NEW SERVICE TO BEGIN IN JANUARY

AMERICAN-HAWAIIAN LINERS TO CONNECT WITH ROAD OVER
TEHUANTEPEC IN JANUARY.

SEATTLE, Sept. 12.—Beginning January 1, 1907, the new Tehuantepec service will be inaugurated, according to an announcement made yesterday by C. W. Cook, agent for the American-Hawaiian line. The service was to have been established next month, but was postponed on account of damage done by the earthquake to the two steamers building in the Union Iron Works in San Francisco.

The Isthmian is to be launched in November and the Columbian early in December. Mr. Cook stated that the terminals on both the Pacific and the Atlantic sides are completed, and that the railroad is hauling goods across the isthmus.

The company plans to maintain seven steamships on the Pacific side and five on the Atlantic coast. The Isthmian and Columbian are to be kept on the Pacific. The service will do away with the voyage around the Horn for vessels of this fleet, and a reduction of rates between Seattle and New York is looked for.
